RUSSIA'S RULER.

Alexander III. Crowned Czar of all the Russias.

Enthusiastic Greeting by His Loyal Subjects.

His Terrorist Bugbears Keep in the Background.

The Czar's Coronation.

MOSCOW, May 22.—The weather this morning for the entry into Moscow of the czar is splendid. The whole route from Petrofsky palace to the Kremlin, four and a half miles, is crowded with people at every point. Imperial standards are displayed, balconies hung with gaily colored materials and Russian colors. The only foreign flags allowed to be displayed are those over the various embassies. Along the road which the procession will traverse are a hundred Venetian masts, from which banners are flying. All the domes and spires of the buildings in the city are decked with flags. A thousand persons passed the night out doors so they might secure good places to witness the procession. Multitudes of others thronged the churches praying for the safety of the emperor.

The signal for starting the procession was the firing of artillery and ringing of the bell of Cathedral Assumption. On the emperor mounting other salutes were fired. The order of procession was as follows: Chief officer of police and twelve gendarmes, the private escort of the emperor; a squadron of Cossacks of the guard and one of dragoons, mounted; Asiatic deputations, representatives of nobility, court servants, couriers to huntsmen; masters of ceremonies in a carriage drawn by six horses, and followed by large numbers court officials and suites of foreign princes, members of the council of the empire, the grand marshal of the court, four squadrons of chevalier guards, the emperor on horseback followed by Count Alexander Adlenberg, minister of war and aid-de-camp general, the czarowitz and grand dukes George Michael, Alexis, Paul and Constantine, the son of Constantine and others. After all the male members of the imperial family, who were on horseback, came the empress accompanied by Grand Duchess Xenia Alexandrin in a state carriage drawn by eight horses, a groom leading each horse, equerries rode on either side of the carriage, mounted pages and grooms following. Then came state carriages, the first containing Grand Duchess Marie Paulevana and Alexandrova Josephinia; second, Grand Duchess Olga Feodora and Marie Alexandrova and the Duchess of Edinburgh; third, Grand Duchess Vera Constantinovano, Duchess of Wurttemberg and Grand Duchess of Wurttemberg, and Grand Duchess Catherine Michaelovana, and fourth, Princess Marie of Baden, Princess Eugenie of Oldenburg and Grand Duchess Helen of Mecklemberg-Schwerin.

A squadron of the Ourrazar regiment of guards, ladies of honor in carriages, a squadron of lancers and deputations of tradesmen joined the procession. At the triumphal arch the marshal of the nobility of Warsaw and several other districts did homage to the emperor. At Tueskin place the civil governor of Moscow, judges and other officers received the emperor. At the Gate Resurrection, his imperial majesty and the grand dukes and empress alighted and knelt in prayer before the picture of the Virgin. The archbishop of Warsaw received their majesties at the steps of the cathedral of Assumption with a cross and holy water. At this point the cheering of the people was perfectly deafening.

The procession then entered the Kremlin. The emperor wore the uniform of a general and was mounted on a splendid charger. He rode in advance of four generals, who were directly attending him. He maintained a calm demeanor, although he often smiled graciously in response to the wild enthusiasm which greeted him at every point. Cheer on cheer followed each other incessantly from the densely packed multitude on the streets and from thousands of people in balconies and windows. The empress was greeted with every mark of enthusiasm and loyalty. Her daughter, the Grand Duchess Xenia, threw kisses to the people. Mounted, the grand dukes formed a very brilliant group. The Asiatic deputations were also magnificently attired. The state carriages were splendidly draped, and the whole effect was gorgeous. The entire route was lined with troops. At the moment the cortege entered a salute of seventy-one guns was fired from Tarskai place. The governor general received the emperor at the city boundary and joined the cortege with his suite.

The emperor wore the broad blue ribbon of the order of Standlews. The empress and the grand duchesses wore the national Russian dresses. After entering the Kremlin, court officials presented their majesties with bread and salt on a platter of silver and gold. When their majesties retired bells pealed and a salute of 101 guns was fired. The streets through which the procession passed were badly paved. The Duke of Edinburgh rode in the rear and on the left of the czar. The duchess of Edinburg and sat in the same coach from that in which was the empress. In Red Square 9,000 school children in white robes sang "Love for the Czars." At this point the enthusiasm of the multitude and playing of the bands produced a great effect. The general verdict is that the pageant was a great success. General Strumhead, master of ceremonies, was thrown from his horse and had his skull fractured.

The Apache Campaign.

EL PASO, Tex., May 22.—Chais's band of Apaches was seen in the neighborhood of San Jose, on the Mexican Central, on Sunday and Monday, heading for Carlotas and Janos, Chihuahua. Nothing was heard from Crook to-night.

—LOUISVILLE, May 22.—A special to the Courier-Journal says: In a drunken brawl at Chicago, Marion county, Kentucky, this evening James Miles was shot twice and instantly killed and James Blair and a man named Granwell dangerously cut. Blair did the shooting.

—EVANSVILLE, May 22.—Engineer Fortune and Fireman Harris of a freight train quarrelled while the train was in full motion. Fortune was dangerously wounded with a coal pick. The quarrel was about a lady. Fortune refused to have Harris arrested.

—ST. LOUIS, May 22.—A Jerseyville, Ill., special says: Walter Dundeen shot and killed Mrs. Nellie Dodson this afternoon, then shot himself, but only inflicted a slight wound. He is in jail.

The party will be made up of editors from New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Massachusetts, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Canada, Ohio and Michigan. The round trip will occupy 12 days, and the run is nearly 3,000 miles.

WILLIAMSFIELD, O., May 22.—Mrs. B. J. McMillie, of Londonville, Ashtabula county, in a fit of temporary insanity drowned her two children in a well forty-five feet deep. Then took poison herself. There is no hope of her recovery. The children were aged 2 and 6 years.

A Strange Accident.

ST. LOUIS, May 22. A Hot Springs, Ark., special says George Johnson, son of British Brudish Johnson, of New York, died at the Arlington house yesterday. He awoke during the night before, got up to get a drink from a pitcher, fell and severed the femoral artery. He was found pulseless and speechless, and died during the day.

Dynamiters Arraigned.

LIVERPOOL May 22.—Dynamite conspirators were arraigned again to-day. Testimony was offered showing the connection of prisoners with the explosion in the gas works at Glasgow. Counsel for Deasy and Finnigan protested that this did not concern their clients.

Kentucky Republicans.

LEXINGTON, May 22. About five hundred delegates to the state republican convention which assembles here to-morrow have already arrived and are busy canvassing the situation. A lively set-to between the stalwart and half-breed factions is expected to-morrow. The appointment of Hon. Walter Evans as commissioner of internal revenue appears to give the delegates great satisfaction.

Ministerial Crisis.

ROME, May 22.—Prime Minister Depretes announced in the chamber of deputies to-day that the cabinet had resigned.

Mysterious Disappearance.

ST. LOUIS, May 23. Another mysterious disappearance has come to light here. A young lady named May Jones, niece of ex-Senator Weer, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., left that place April 23d for St. Louis and arrived here on the 25th. She is known to have gone to the union depot, and it is supposed left on some train, but since then nothing has been heard of her. Her friends are in a state of great anxiety. She is described as a severe student and religious enthusiast. It is supposed from a slight mental derangement she wandered away. Detectives are working on the case, but so far have no clue.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Money 2 to 3 per cent; closing at 2½ to 3 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 5 to 6; sterling exchange strong, $4.85, demand $4.83½. Produce exports for the week $6,850,000.

Governments ⅛c to ⅜c lower; states quiet and strong; railroads irregular. Stocks again unsettled and feverish. In the forenoon the market declined till two, when a raise seemed to be made. Prices further declined ⅛c to ⅜c, but in the last half hour there was a strong reaction and the decline of the first half of the hour was more than recovered, advancing ⅛c to 1¼c. Several stocks touched extraordinarily low prices to-day, notably Burlington and Central and Union Pacific.

The Post says: Bears have had their own way for two days and it is thought have so far oversold the market that any considerable buying would cause a sharp advance. Sales 150,000 shares.

Mining stocks fairly active, generally strong. Sierra Nevada sold at 5.75 and 6.00; Union Consolidated 5.25 to 5.13; Mexico 3.50; Consolidated Virginia 62 to 65; Sierra Grande 1.10; Navajo 1.75 and 1.70; Horn Silver 6.50 to 6.65; Chrysolite 1.10 and 1.15, and Sonora Consolidated 55. GENERAL NEWS.

Mexico's Inducements for the Settlement of Colonies.

Great Excitement Over the Seizure of the San Pedro Mines.

Damage by Cold in the East---Worse Than Cyclones.

San Pedro Mine Difficulty.

LAS VEGAS, May 22. A special from Wallace, New Mexico, to the Gazette says: A friend of Colonel Webb, of Golden, the party that captured the San Pedro mines yesterday, arrived here this evening to meet Page and Miguel Otero. Your correspondent talked with all three together. They claim the property occupied by the Canon Del Agua company belongs to Larseeso Otero and the heirs of Don Miguel Otero, being located by the Bostod company though a fraudulent survey. They also state that the present occupants are prolonging the contest simply to wear out the actual owners and claimants. This property has been in litigation for nearly three years. Otero prosecuting on a Spanish grant issued in 1846, while the San Pedro company through a similar title, which Otero retorts does not cover the grant now occupied by the San Pedro corporation. Manager McKee telephones that if he is not again placed in possession by the authorities the smelting works must close. The governor has refused to interfere. Considerable excitement prevails here, and there are a great many strangers in town awaiting developments.

Mexican Colonists.

EL PASO, May 22. The Times has further details of the Mexican colonization scheme. The government will pay the transportation of settlers to the point of settlement. It will furnish land in suitable quantities, both for grazing and farming purposes. It has in several instances purchased from private owners entire haciendas in order to have proper locations for colonies that were ready to settle. It will loan a small sum of money per month, about ten dollars as a rule, and sell on time a plow, wagon, and other necessary tools, with a tent to live in till a house is built. The average amount of land that will be assigned is a hectare or 1,000 square metres, that is about 2.471 American acres. The colonist will be required to repay the government, with the exception of the transportation and the land, which is to be a free gift to the settler. Repayments for any other advance is to be made after two years. Ten years will be allowed for the repayment of loans, etc., and small charges on the land to cover survey, etc. If the settler is unfortunate and does not repay, all obligation is cancelled by a return of the land.

Denver Dots.

DENVER, May 22.—This afternoon a little child about 18 months old belonging to Mr. Thomas Blackburn, who resides at 32d and Larimer, was run over by a street car and killed.

The county court has been busy to-day with an inquisition of lunacy to determine the sanity of James H. Learned, an old and respected citizen of Denver. He owns property in this city valued at $75,000. It may be remembered that last February he escaped from his guard and made his way to California, where he was found. He professed to be a magnetic healer and told fortunes, and in this way made expenses. The jury will certainly adjudge him insane.

Mr. E. P. Waite, for many years connected with the Denver Tribune, is lying at the point of death. His disease is consumption.

Unseasonable Cold.

NEW ORLEANS, May 23.—Telegrams from all sections of Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas report unseasonably cold weather. Last night the mercury at midnight was 62.

MANHATTAN, Kas., May 22.—A white frost here this morning has probably nipped the corn.

CINCINNATI, May 22.—Snow was still visible this morning, but was about all gone by ten o'clock, leaving no sign of blight on the leaves or fruit. The temperature has risen to 44; still cloudy.

ST. LOUIS, May 22. The Post-Dispatch special from Caseyville, Illinois, says: A severe frost damaged crops considerably, doing more damage than the cyclone.

CLEVELAND, May 22. The Leader's specials report snow still falling to-day in Auglaize county. Small fruit is all killed and other fruit badly injured. In Fairfield county crops are much damaged by washouts. Rain fell incessantly for 36 hours.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Advices to the Inter-Ocean from various points in Illinois and Iowa indicate frost quite general last night in those states.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 22.—Overcoats and fires are comfortable. Thermometer 50. It is feared cotton is injured.

Strikes.

PATERSON, N. J., May 23. Over one hundred Ashley and Bailey silk weavers have struck for an advance of ten per cent. The strike is sanctioned by the Silk Weavers Friendly and Protective Society of America as the first attempt to equalize weavers' wages.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—The strike among coal miners at McAllister and other places on the Missouri Pacific railway in the Choctaw nation, which has been a serious inconvenience to railroads and a number of towns in Northern Texas which obtain their coal from these mines, seems to be in a fair way of settlement. These miners can only remain in the territory by obtaining permits from the Indian authorities. Without these permits they can be expelled from the country as intruders. This being explained to the miners a large number of them have signed an agreement to resume work, and the probabilities are that all except the ringleaders of the strike will return. The latter will no doubt be refused permits, and required to leave the territory.

How the Dead Followed the King.

Notes and Queries.

In 1871 I was at Naples, when an Italian corvette, the Ammiraglio Caracciolo, was launched at Castellamare. The vessel was christened by the Countess Teresa Caracciolo, the daughter of the chief of the elder branch of the Caracciolli. I was staying at Naples as the guest of the young lady's father, and I heard from him a very remarkable story connected with the death of the unfortunate officer in honor of whose memory the vessel was named. The circumstances which lead to the execution of Prince Francesco Caracciolo in 1799 are well known. I shall merely state, therefore, that he was condemned by a court-martial composed of Sicilian officers to be hanged at the yard-arm of the flag ship for bearing arms against his lawful sovereign. When the official communication of the finding and the sentence of the court was brought to the prince, he was explaining the names and uses of the various parts of the rigging to some young Neapolitan noblemen who happened to be on board the ship. A glance at the letter was sufficient to show him its contents. He showed no sign of emotion, but requested the officer who brought the dispatch to wait for a few minutes while he finished his explanations. This being done he retired to his cabin, and, after a vain attempt to get the sentence changed to a more honorable manner of death, he resigned himself to his fate, which he met with great fortitude.

Some days after the event the king, who had been for an afternoon's cruise on a Sicilian ship of war outside the bay, was returning to Naples in the evening. It was a moonlight night, and the sea was perfectly calm. There was, indeed, so little wind that it was difficult to steer the vessel. The king was sitting in the balcony of the stern cabin, watching the sea, when suddenly he became aware that something was following the ship. As the object came near it was easy to distinguish that it was the body of a man in an upright attitude, as if treading water; and very soon the king was able to recognize the features of Admiral Caracciolo. His eyes were open and seemed to be fixed on the king, and, except for its ghastly pallor, the face was unchanged. The explanation was simple. After being submerged for some days the body had become so buoyant that the weights attached to the feet were not sufficiently heavy to keep it under water; but they retained it in an upright position, and it was drawn along by the current created by the movement of the ship. It is easy to imagine the horror of Ferdinand at what he believed to be an apparition from another world. When at length it was explained to him what had happened, he gave orders that a boat should be lowered and that the corpse should be brought on board and taken to Naples for Christian burial. But the superstitious Sicilians dared not obey the royal command, and the ship, drawing in its wake the upright body of the admiral, sailed slowly into the bay of Naples. Here a boat's crew was obtained from an English man-of-war, who took the admiral's body ashore, where it was deposited in his own palace, and at length received the last rites of the church.

A different version of the story is given in Southey's "Life of Nelson." I have here related the traditional account preserved in the family of the admiral exactly as it was told me by its chief.

The annual session of the Homeopathic Medical Society of the State of Colorado will meet in this city to-day. Manitou Mention.

Mr. Ashby, of Colorado Springs, was busy yesterday putting up an awning in front of the Brunswick billiard hall for Miller & Nolan.

Mrs. George M. Walker, of Denver, is sojourning at the Manitou house for a few days. She prefers Manitou to Denver as a place of residence.

Jim Dascombe, of Denver, will run the Beebee house billiard room during the coming season, and is now having it remodeled and otherwise improved.

The Cliff house is doing a large business for this season of the year.

A. Malpas, a Central Pacific official, is at the Barker house, accompanied by his wife and daughter.

John Van, the extensive range manufacturer, of Cincinnati, is at the Barker house for the summer.

It has been found that many of the stone walls built on Manitou avenue project several feet into the street and will have to be changed before the sidewalks can be laid.

A special train brought to Manitou yesterday morning, T. E. Sickles, consulting engineer of the Union Pacific, C. M. Baker, Mrs. Charles Whiting, Miss Grace Atkins, Miss Hetod Atkins, Miss Evelyn Ames, Annalee Ames, of Boston, Mrs. D. B. Lee, of Worcester, and Miss Rosalie Sickles, of Philadelphia. The party is quartered at the Manitou house.

Two hundred and fifty Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin editors now on their way to Colorado will spend next Wednesday at Manitou.

W. A. Parry, of the Baldwin locomotive works, is at Manitou on his wedding tour. He is at the Barker house.

Messrs. W. F. Upson, of Cleveland, and B. C. Tilghman and John E. Le Coute, of Philadelphia, who have been at the Barker house several weeks, are preparing to start from Manitou overland for Yellowstone Park. They will go through the mountains in charge of a guide and expect to be gone until the first of October.

Yesterday Clarence, the five-year-old son of Mr. John Rand, while playing with another little boy in one of the rooms of the Bell View cottage, ejected a thirty-eight caliber revolver from the top shelf of a closet in the room and began amusing himself with it. In some way the weapon was discharged, the ball passing through the first and second fingers of the boy's left hand. Dr. McMillan was called and found it necessary to amputate the forefinger, but thinks he will be able to save the other. The chamber discharged was the only one loaded in the revolver. Mrs. Rand, who was upon a chair in one of the adjoining rooms reaching for a bird cage, was so startled by the report of the revolver that in her hurry to step to the floor she sprained her ankle severely.

G. A. R. NOTES.

How Decoration Day Will be Observed.

There was a largely attended meeting of Colorado Springs Post No. 23 Grand Army of the Republic last night. Fourteen new members were mustered in, making the full membership of the post seventy-four. The most of those mustered in last night were from Manitou and Colorado City.

It is proposed to have memorial services next Sunday night at either the Congregational church or the opera house. Full arrangements have not as yet been perfected.

There are a number of new applications for membership on file to be acted on at the next meeting on Monday night. At the present rate Post No. 23 will have over 100 members before the encampment at Denver in July.

Thirty members of the post have complete uniforms and a number of others have ordered them. A banner, costing $50, has been sent for and will be here on Decoration day.

Extensive arrangements have been made for the proper observance of Decoration day, Wednesday, May 30th. On the morning of that day the post will take the 8:50 train on the Denver & New Orleans road, go to Evergreen cemetery, decorate the graves of ex-Union soldiers, returning to the city on the noon train. In the afternoon there will be a procession participated in by Company A, Post No. 23, G. A. R., sons of veterans, ex-Union soldiers, mayor and city council, fire department and citizens in carriages. After parading through the principal streets the procession will disband at the opera house where a memorial address will be delivered by General Sawyer, president of the Grand Army Institute at Canon City. Chief Engineer Pixley will act as marshal of the day.

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

SILVERTON.

Silverton Democrat.

Since the discovery of rich mines in the Red Mountain district, there has been a permanent and gradual growth of our mining resources, and while we have seen our most prosperous and encouraging days in midwinter, there is a summer of unusual activity yet in store for our region of the glittering galena. While the most severe days of cold and snow have prevented prospectors and miners from revealing the treasures of this famous region, there has been wonderful advancement made in the more accessible portions of this section. The marks of this substantial development and established confidence is forcibly visible in Silverton. People from every mining region in America are daily visiting the "Gem of the Rockies," and after carefully investigating the outlook, take immediate advantage of the opportunity to invest in either mining or town property. In many cases valuable and substantial business houses and residences are being erected, and where once the eastern portion of town was a race track and base ball ground, there are several large business houses and residences going up, which would be an ornament to any city. Well can the writer remember when the park which is now covered with a thriving and prosperous city, was but a plateau overgrown with wild flowers and prairie dog mounds. Look at the ground to-day, and the eye quivers with amazement. His observations are conclusions that what is done in winter is only the beginning of what is yet to come during the summer. Silverton depends on Red Mountain to a great extent, and Red Mountain depends upon the advantages and resources of Silverton. This is an inevitable fact, and no portion of San Juan tributary to us will deny the fact. Is it not true?

LEADVILLE PRODUCTION.

Leadville Democrat.

The lowering clouds with which the mining industry has been contending for ten days past, have probably spent their wrath and are again upon their aerial perch, while the sun takes a front seat, to the great satisfaction of mining interests. Should the present weather be prolonged for several days it will make material difference in the matter of ore hauling and the deficiencies of the last few days will probably be mended. The reporter meeting Agent George W. Cook, of the Denver & Rio Grande and South Park, yesterday afternoon, interrogated him in reference to the condition of bullion and ore shipments. In speaking of the matter that gentleman suggested that the dissolution of the Harrison reduction works had naturally affected the bullion product and that the decrease as compared with the same period of the previous year might be legitimately attributed to this. As far as the ore shipments were concerned they would exceed that of the month of May last year, and indeed they are so unusual as to necessitate the construction of additional side tracks for the accommodation of ore haulers from the Evans gulches, as well as Carbonate and Fryer hills. The shipments to Canon City, Pueblo, Denver and other competitive points will exceed that of the corresponding month of 1882 by from seven to eight thousand tons of mineral. A few days like that of yesterday will put the roads in such a condition as to permit the unloading of bins at the various mines whose shipments have been stunted by the recent bad weather, and the capacity of the smelters will be attained as it never has been before. For this reason alone the shipments of the week which has just drawn to a close will naturally show a diminution as compared with that of the preceding, but this will be fully made up for by the large shipments of the present week.

THE OLD FRAUD AGAIN.

Gothic Record.

Brick Pomeroy is accused by the stockholders of the Atlantic and Pacific company, of stealing over $100,000 of the company's funds. Judge Elliott has been asked to grant an injunction and appoint a receiver.

Mr. Moulton, one of the stockholders, says: "The examination of the books showed that $177,000 had been collected while only about $70,000 had been expended for the company, leaving a balance of over one hundred thousand dollars not accounted for. That was the state of affairs several months ago. But Pomeroy has been receiving money right along which has not been used for the company, and is still selling stock and appropriating money for other than its proper use. Why a year ago at the time of the annual meeting, he was defaulter in the sum of $10,000."

Mr. Moulton further states that the old management allowed Pomeroy a salary of $6,000, and the other two directors salaries of $3,500 each. It gave them $35 a foot for driving the tunnel, when I am getting one nearly as large and in just as hard rock run for $14 a foot.

Pomeroy denies any crooked business, and will probably wiggle through. He is too slippery an old eel to be caught. He is again preaching democracy and reform.

Texas Talk.

Next Wednesday will be the first general observance of Decoration day in this city. The Grand Army post of this city has made elaborate preparations, and will have entire charge of the ceremonies. The post established in this city only a few months ago has steadily grown, and is now one of the most flourishing in the state. Its members are representatives of nearly every loyal state

Just now the pope seems to be very much commended and very much abused. He is attacked for writing an advisory letter to his bishops and priests against sympathizing with or helping the revolutionary deeds in Ireland. It was a brave thing to do, and was done in the interest of peace and good government. But this is not understood and he is criticised for his taking part in politics. For this Congressman Finerty says he should be treated as a politician. But he has assumed no civil power, unlike Hildebrand and Innocent the third who claimed that the church was supreme over all secular princes. The circular letter of the pope will do much to create respect for his office where it has not been felt President Grant wrote to a member of the civil service commission in 1872 that "the great defect in the past custom is that executive patronage had come to be regarded as the property of the individuals of the party in power." This shows that General Grant recognized the great evil, but he acted more on this principle, though he calls it "a past custom" in the last two years of his term. The new commission has no brighter prospects in 1883, than George William Curtis' commission of 1872. That of 1872 had much more positive assurances of help and sympathy from General Grant than President Arthur has given. For these reasons there is a question in the mind of many whether the new commission will be able to accomplish more than the old. We think it will because there is such a difference in public sentiment. The abuse of patronage has been greater and the people have felt it. The commission of 1872 was not supported so much because there was a widespread feeling that there were abuses to be corrected, as that the system of making appointments could be improved. But now the feeling is that there are great abuses which this commission must correct. Civil service reform never had such a backing as they have now.

Emperor Alexander III of Russia was crowned yesterday without the threatened revolution. It is now two years ago the thirteenth of last March since Alexander II. was assassinated. His successor has persistently put off coronation until now. He comes from one of the oldest reigning families in Europe. The house of Hapsburg is the oldest having possessed the throne of Austria Hungary since 1282. Next comes the house of Romanof, which has occupied the throne of Russia since 1613. Then comes the house of Hohenzollern, which began to reign in 1701. This dynasty was founded by Michael Romanof, who was elected Tsar in 1613. It has been a wonderful family. While showing inferiority at times, it has usually furnished able sovereigns. It furnished Russia's greatest sovereign in Peter the Great, the cruelest in Ivan III, the most cultivated in Alexander I, and the greatest woman sovereign Europe has known in Catherine II. Alexander III, who was crowned yesterday, was born in 1845. He married Princess Dagmar of Denmark, in 1866, and began his reign in 1881. Much was expected of it, because of his reputed liberality, but he soon corrected this opinion, and is now as despotic as is possible. He has indicated thus far none of the characteristics of a great sovereign. He reigns at a time when the wisest statesmanship is needed, but has failed to improve his great opportunities

The Denver & Rio Grande has such fine rolling stock that with the same grades it can easily make the time made on the broad gauge roads in the east. The Pueblo Chieftain gives the following interesting account of a little trial of speed made on the Alamosa division:

On the Denver & Rio Grande train which left Pueblo for the south last night was Gov A. C. Hunt, formerly a prominent officer of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad management. Gov Hunt has not lost any of his interest in the little pioneer road, and before leaving the depot he asked that a trial run be made for his benefit just to see how fast the little Rio Grande could go when she wanted to, he expressing the belief that a narrow gauge could run almost as fast as a broad gauge if necessary. Permission was granted to make a trial run. Conductor Thomas had charge of the train, and Engineer Kelner pulled the throttle. The road between Pueblo and Cuchara is pretty smooth and when the outskirts of the city were reached the engineer pulled the throttle open and "let her go." Never before did the little narrow gauge make such a run over the little division, and the hair of the passengers who were not "in it" stood up like the bristles on a hog's back. Telegraph poles seemed scarcely a foot apart so rapidly were they passed, and when the first twenty five miles had been run it was found that only twenty-seven minutes had been consumed, and the last two miles had been run in less than two minutes. After a three minutes blow the little iron horse snorted and away he went over the plain like a frightened deer and when another breathing spell was taken at the end of the forty-sixth mile and it was announced that the run had been made in fifty two minutes including a stop of three minutes, such a shout as was never before heard in that locality was given vent by the delighted passengers and trainmen, and the universal verdict of all was that the little Rio Grande was hard to beat. The total run of forty six miles had been made in just forty nine minutes

How Shall the Mammoth Millionaire Enjoy Himself

London Spectator

Those who watch the new mammoth millionaires now coming forward in such numbers from America and Australia, say that one definite reason for dreading them is their incapacity for spending their fortunes in amusing themselves. A man who has made twenty millions sterling, say, by vast "corners" in railway shares, finds that unless he goes on making money, or is one of those fortunate persons who can continuously devote themselves to an object, the excess to which his fortune transcends that of other rich men is of very little use to him. He can, of course, get out of it all the personal luxury in the way of fine houses and good eating, and purple and fine linen generally, that he may happen to wish for, but in these things there is for him no special satisfaction. Anybody with say, £50,000 a year, or other bread-and-butter fortune of that kind, can buy all the personal luxury he can enjoy, including in some places social deference, and the mammoth millionaire wants something more. He wants to feel the value of the difference between his resources and those of the merely rich, to do or enjoy something which they cannot attempt. Elephantine amusements may be amusing, but they are only elephantine, and he is a mammoth, wants larger trees to crash through, bigger forests to browse in, a deeper swamp in which to gambol and roll. In a little planet like ours this is not easy to obtain. He desires, like the rest of us, to utilize his special advantage, which is the command of the modern form of the wishing cap in a degree to which no one else can pretend, and it is difficult to wish for anything that nobody with a smaller cap can get. He can travel about if he likes, travel very pleasantly, but so can the ordinarily wealthy man, money beyond a certain amount adding little either to the enjoyment or the conveniences of travel. The present writer was traveling once on the track of an empress, and was so inconvenienced by her wealth that he watched to see what it gave her. It was very little indeed, nothing compared with what she obtained from her European rank. When crossing the Alps she swept up for two days in advance every available horse, engaging at one point no less than eighty, but she could only sit in one place in one barouche, and moved, on the whole, no quicker than other people. The huge suite seemed to be merely a burden, choking up the roads, calling forth tiresome crowds, and sometimes creating wearisome delays. There was a physician, for instance, who actually fell ill, to the loss of eleven hours. The empress upset the traveling arrangements of a great line for three days by her requirements in the way of special train and extra precautions, but any one rich enough to hire a saloon carriage for himself and pay for a pilot engine in front, a matter of less than a pound a mile, would have traveled with just as much personal enjoyment. The empress' rank, no doubt, helped her greatly in opening inaccessible castles at tracting experts as ciceroni, and securing her near Naples a paradise to live in which no money would have purchased, but the command of millions of itself procured no more than thousands would have.

As to creating a grand place—the idea which Edgar Poe puts into the head of his imaginary millionaire—it is to be done, no doubt, with skill and judgment but when the colossal once enters into an enterprise of the kind, it becomes unenjoyable. No private man would be happier even in his own thoughts for creating a Versailles, and short of Versailles, half a million well laid out, will do all that is required. To "found a family," in the English sense, is in America or Australia impossible and a great estate gives comparatively little influence, and, beyond a certain limit quite attainable by any rich man, no particular pleasure. What is the use of owning square miles when nobody will "cap" to you or vote for you, or recognize your greatness in any way that is not half hostile. Of course, if the mammoth millionaire is a collector he can make a mammoth collection, but when once you have acquired all the snuff boxes or jade bowls, or fine cat's eyes to be procured a thousand more specimens add very little to your gratification. A collection loses its charm when it is magnified into a museum. Besides, all these things cost comparatively little. They can any one of them be done to any reasonable extent by a man with a hundred thousand a year and we are talking of the millionaires, to whom that income seems respectable poverty. The true mammoth, I am sure, is forced to accumulate by the difficulty of getting rid of his money, and soon finds that really to use it with a visible result adequate to the power expended, there is no way except to increase and increase the business operations. That is the reason why in America the founder of the fortune continues his trade—and why his son, with a greater wealth, will be tempted to continue after him, and keep on rolling up the snow ball till smaller men declare, as they are declaring now about the railway kings, that its bulk is becoming dangerous.

Coal Oil in New Mexico

Albuquerque Journal

Dispatches were received in this city on Sunday afternoon and confirmed on Monday morning, by interested parties, that the First New Mexico Bitumen and Coal Oil company had struck oil thirty miles north of Coolidge. Mr F P Morgan, who had the work in charge, struck the free flow of oil at 5 o'clock Saturday.

The company is composed entirely of Albuquerque people, and was organized a few months ago on representations made by Prof Bibikov, who had carefully explored the country, and in whose scientific opinion all those who know him have confidence. He had discovered indications which he regarded as infallible, and this discovery abundantly establishes the correctness of his judgment. The officers of the company have been confident that the finding of oil would be only a question of time and work but that they should have come upon it in so short a time and with so little work is a most agreeable surprise. They have been busily engaged in perfecting their arrangements ever since the organization of the company, and have secured title to some 1,600 acres of land, including that upon which the oil has been found, and all of which shows more or less indications. The working party left Coolidge last Wednesday, went into camp at the oil springs Thursday, and by noon Friday they had tapped a body of oil which is now flowing freely

Advancing years, care sickness, disappointment and hereditary predisposition all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume

OVER THE CREST

Of Mountain, down by Cool Waters, and Otherwise Relieving the Tedium of Summer Travel by the Coolest Line of Railway on the Continent.—Picturesque B. & O.

With the approach of the genial glow of summer, the expanding blossoms of May time flora, the gentle breezes, laden with the delicate fragrance of budding sweets and the delicious picturesque B. & O. with its new schedule, its faster time and general batch of good things from its regular summer budget. It is fit and apropos that so race a line of beauty as the B. & O. should announce its summer programme when nature is attired in its loveliest garb of all the year. Ordinarily railroads are humdrum subjects, good enough and certainly indispensable in their way, but hardly a topic to base a poetic idyl upon; particularly when under the exquisite influences of a dreamy day in May. Nevertheless there is much in the B. & O. not incongruous with the royal splendor of the early summer time, when the bloom upon the rose, the apple blossoms and the peach, the emerald sward and the daisy all vie the one with the other in forming parts of a matchless picture painted by the master-hand of nature. The mountains girded by the glittering bands of steel, the foam-crested waters spanned by bright gleaming ribbons of the metal and the fields where the daisies grow, the hill sides from which the blossoms send heavenward their fragrance and the velvety carpet of the valley all as truly betoken the presence of that agency without which so glorious a panorama would still, as of yore, be confined to the selfish glare of the sun by day and to the associate cold stare of the stars by night.

Had not the Baltimore & Ohio been constructed as it was, through the very garden of the continent—watered by the Potomac the Shenandoah and the Youghioghenly, onward and upward, until the crests of the Blue River and the noble old Alleganies almost kiss the clouds, then plunging down through canon, o'er chasm and beneath towering masses, to the broad, open shores of the Ohio—had not the land of the B. & O. man done all this, why a journey would have been lost to all men! When then, can say that thought of the rare and unequaled beauties lining every foot of the B. & O. way, from the Ohio to the sea, are not in keeping with the spell thrown over us by the witchery of the season? No railroad in the world compares with it for picturesque loveliness and mountain grandeur; and the points relative to change of time on the B. & O., to new trains and to the old, have an interest not dreamed of in connection with other roads. Thus it becomes a matter of personal gratification that the old favorite Daisy train still shows her dainty heels to would-be rivals to the troubling time of seven hours to Washington, and a corresponding activity to all western cities; or, in other words, this matchless train making the fastest long run known for years, leaves St. Louis in the morning, Cincinnati in the evening, and reaches Washington next day for dinner, a whole meal ahead of all other trains—the others not putting in an appearance until supper time. To Baltimore the time saved is over four hours, and Philadelphia and New York are reached in time for supper. The corresponding train from the east to the west should also have an appropriate name, and if the one is a daisy the other is a darling, sure enough. Leaving New York at seven in the evening, and passing through Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, en route, Cincinnati is reached early next evening in ample time for the connection south and southwest. On the old schedule the time was some two hours longer, and that much later getting into Cincinnati. A similar change in the order of things is gained at St. Louis, as the train, with its through sleeper, from New York, reaches the "Future Great" early the second morning, in an abundance of time to make all the connections for the west and south, and which connections are made in union depot, wherein all the through trains of the Baltimore & Ohio run. They pass from Parkersburg to Cincinnati over the old Marietta and Cincinnati line, now greatly improved in every way, and known to the world as the Cincinnati, Washington & Baltimore railroad. It is a model road in all its details, and managed right up to the mark. From Cincinnati to St. Louis the Baltimore & Ohio trains pass over the noted western short line, the Ohio and Mississippi. With a track as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar and a motive power celebrated throughout railway circles for its remarkable efficiency, the Ohio & Mississippi has set the pegs very high for rival lines in the way of fast time. The beauty of it is that the road is so smooth and the line so level that the passenger fairly flies without recognizing he is going at hardly anything more than a rather lively jog.

With its direct interchanging lines, such patterns of railway management is no puzzle to account for the superiority of the B. & O. over all other through routes between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington and Cincinnati and St. Louis. While occupying an incomparable position as regards the cities named, the B. & O. enjoys equal distinction as a Chicago line, it owning, controlling and operating every foot of the route from the Atlantic to Lake Michigan and Lake Erie. It is the only line running its trains through from New York to Chicago and Chicago to New York with absolutely no change of cars whatever, and it was the B. & O. that originated the term "solid" trains and inaugurated the system. How successful it has proved is indicated by the imitators. The Chicago "Solid," as this train has become known, has recently had added a superb new dining car, which in roomy appointments and novelties in the way of tables, seats, etc., is unquestionably the "swell" dinner of the period. Like the new and magnificent sleepers, the dining halls on the line and everything else pertaining to the road, the one company owns and manages its own dining car line; consequently there are no outside corporations to live upon passengers, and the latter deal in every single instance with the B. & O. The oldest passenger railway in the world, the B. & O. can show a record for speed, safety, for prompt employment of every new feature, and for satisfying the public wholly and unparalleled. In the language of an enthusiastic western admirer, "It is the boss road, and don't you forget it."

A Love-Sick Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 22. Guido Battini, the young Italian lieutenant who recently shot himself on account of a love affair, has so far recovered that he was arraigned in police court today to answer the charge of attempting to take his own life. He was accompanied by his friends, the Duke of Castle Lucca and General Dio Cosnola. Battini said he didn't know what he was doing when he shot himself. He was held in bail, which was furnished by his friends.

A Historic Locomotive.

Washington Republican.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railway company will send to the Chicago Railway exposition, among other articles of their exhibit, the first locomotive engine built for their road which proved successful. This locomotive is the celebrated "Arabian," No. 1, which like all prominent objects in Baltimore, has a family history. It is not, as generally supposed, either the first engine built by the company, or the first engine that pulled a train on a curved road. The first engine was built by Peter Cooper. Pangborn, in his valuable history of the Baltimore & Ohio road, says: "Cooper came to Baltimore with an odd looking contrivance, called a steam engine. The boiler was not as large as that of a modern kitchen range. It was about the same diameter, but not more than half the height, and had a smokestack that looked like an aggravated putty blower. This was the first locomotive for railway purposes built in America, and drew the first passenger car propelled by steam upon any railway in the world."

This locomotive was beaten by a horse in a fair race, and caused the first railway accident that ever occurred. In trying to adjust some gearing that had slipped Mr. Cooper lacerated his hand. The locomotive was unsatisfactory, and premiums were offered for others. Mr. Phineas Davis, master of machinery of the road, had one built at York, Pa., which weighed 2½ tons, and was found too light. Two others were built by Reeder, at Hughes' quay, on the south side of the harbor, but didn't amount to anything. Then Mr. Davis designed the Arabian. This engine was built at the company's shops, under the supervision of its designer. It went into service June, 1884. It has been carefully taken care of and repaired, and, with very little difference, is precisely the same engine that it was 49 years ago. It is claimed to be the oldest effective locomotive engine in the United States and perhaps in the world. It is a geared engine, having a vertical cylinder with walking beam. It has four driving wheels, each thirty-six inches in diameter, or nearly one-half the size of the drivers used on modern passenger locomotives. The weight of the Arabian is thirteen tons, about one-third that of the modern locomotive. Its tractive power is 6,000 pounds. It used to have its fans connected with the exhaust, but those became broken, and no attempt has been made to restore them. With this exception it is the same engine as when first made. It is in active service at the Mount Clare yards, and works as well now as when first put on the road. It was for many years a passenger engine, drawing trains on both the Washington branch and the main stem. So far as could be learned it had never met with an accident, never jumped a rail or run off the track, with one exception. That exception was a notable one. Before it was finished Mr. Davis promised the workmen engaged in the shops—some three hundred—to take them and their families on the train drawn by the Arabian as far as it went, then to go to Washington and have dinner at Brown's (now the Metropolitan) hotel. The Washington branch was then opened nearly to Bladensburg. The trip was made, William Duff being the engineer. Just west of Jessup's cut, 13½ miles this side of Baltimore, the Arabian ran off the track. Mr. Davis was sitting with Mr. Duff when the accident occurred. The engine rolled on its side. Neither Duff nor anybody else on the train was hurt, even in the least, except Mr. Davis. He was killed. There seemed to be a special fate in the matter. Nobody could ever tell why the Arabian ran off the track. There was no evidence ever shown, although the fullest investigation was made, that any cause existed to throw it off.

As the Bullock press, which, the first time it was put to work, caught its inventor and printed him into its first impression, so the Arabian, on its first trip, killed its designer and maker. An imaginative man, gifted with a little superstition, might think that matter had been imbued with intelligence that resented its creation thus fiercely on its creator.

The Arabian will be engineered to Chicago by Mr. Thomas Galloway. The Chicagoans will thus see the oldest effective locomotive engine in the world run by the oldest living railway engineer, an incident in railway history that deserves a more lasting record than that of a newspaper article.

The great railroad exposition commences at Chicago, May 24, and lasts until the 31st. There will be hundreds of curiosities exhibited in the shape of old railroad appliances, and the old will be contrasted with the new. The exposition will afford a great deal of interest, not only to railroad men, but to the public at large. The tracks for the electric railroad are now being laid, and the manner in which the trains are operated and the power utilized will be carefully noted by railroad men.

SALICYLICA.

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panacea only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.

The First Regiment Cavalry band gave an open air concert in the north park last night. There were quite a number present, considering that no announcement of the concert had been given.

It is understood that the programme to be presented at the entertainment given in Court House hall to-morrow night for the benefit of the association reading rooms will be a very interesting one.

—The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian association was held in the association rooms last night. No business of very great importance was transacted.

Mr. Allen Hancock Austin, the compounder of prescriptions at the City drug store, is the inventor of several different kinds of patent medicines, which are said to be sure cure. These remedies are receiving such a world wide reputation that the compounder of them is beginning to be looked upon as a great blessing to mankind.

The following undelivered telegrams are at the Western Union office: Mrs. Alfred Green, care of Mr. William Parkhurst; Lizzie Squires, James B. Roberts, Miss C. A. Mason, C. F. Fishback.

Mr. B. D. Sanborn, one of the prominent real estate and insurance men of Greeley, is in the city, accompanied by his wife. They are on their wedding tour, and are the guests of Mrs. S. W. McDermid.

John Hundley, the livery man, has received several fine horses and some new carriages and buggies. He has control of the livery business coming from the Antlers, and is preparing to provide the guests with the best of turnouts.

Messrs. Smith, Aux & Co., the liverymen, have in addition to their business here a stable at Manitou. Those having rigs of this firm for the purpose of visiting Manitou can have their horses taken care of at that stable free of charge.

A change has been made in the plans, and Wolfe's opera house orchestra of Denver, assisted by Miss Campbell, will not give a concert in Colorado Springs next week. They will visit the northern Colorado towns first, coming here later in the season.

Trafley still continues to achieve honors as catcher of the Cincinnatis. Says the Commercial of his game at Louisville on Saturday: "Trafley was a yard wide and all wool. The young man who looks and plays so much like John Clapp, promises to put Snyder and Powers on their mettle. His throwing to bases is his great point."

A very pleasant time was had at the reception at the Association reading rooms last night. Mr. George Rex Buckman gave a select reading, followed by instrumental music by Miss Waters and Miss Ferris. The feature of the evening, however, was the singing by Mrs. Gilbert. Refreshments were served after the programme was completed.

To-morrow evening a May coronation festival, consisting of tableaux, charades, May pole dances and vocal and instrumental music will be given at Court House hall, under the direction of Mrs. M. T. Shropshire, and for the benefit of the Association Reading rooms. The prices of admission will be 50 cents, children 25 cents. Tickets for sale at the book stores.

Many will regret to learn of the death of Mr. William La Lanne, which occurred in this city last evening. Mr. La Lanne came to Colorado Springs from Philadelphia in the summer 1879 for the benefit of his health, and has resided here almost continuously since that time. The change improved him so much that one year ago last fall he went back east with the intention of remaining, but breaking down in health he was again compelled to visit Colorado. Since returning the second time the climate has not had the same effect on him and he continued to fail to the time of his death. The remains will be sent to his former home for burial.
